4. CIRCULAR NO. 17/2024/TT-BTNMT REGULATES THE DETAILED COLLECTION OF INVESTIGATION, ASSESSMENT, DETERMINATION OF DAMAGE, AND COMPILATION

OF DOSSIERS OF COMPENSATION FOR ENVIRONMENTAL DAMAGE CAUSED BY OIL SPILL INCIDENTS OCCURRING IN VIETNAM'S COASTAL AREAS.

4.1. Introduction

On 15 November 2024, Circular No. 17/2024/TT-BTNMT issued by the Ministry of Natural Resources and Environment officially came into effect, regulating the investigation, assessment, and identification of environmental damage caused by oil spills in marine areas. This circular provides detailed, scientific, and legal guidance for handling oil spill incidents in the marine environment, offering measures to address environmental damage in an accurate, fair, and appropriate manner.

4.2. Steps for Investigating and Assessing Environmental Damage from Oil Spills in the Marine Environment

Step 1: Develop an Investigation and Assessment Plan for environmental damage from oil spills

This is the first and crucial step in the oil spill response process. The plan is developed immediately after the incident occurs to ensure that the investigation is conducted systematically and comprehensively. The plan must clearly outline the following: a) General information on the basis for plan development, objectives, requirements, scope, and implementation timeline; an overview of the area affected by the oil spill; b) Content and methods for investigating and assessing the extent of pollution to evaluate environmental damage caused by the oil spill at sea; c) Implementation methods; d) Timeline and progress of implementation.

Step 2: Collect information, documents, and data for investigation and assessment

The collection of information is an essential step to conduct an accurate investigation. The data to be collected includes information about the organizations or individuals causing the incident; information about the polluted area, the incident's impact on ecosystems, and the affected species of flora and fauna. The collected data must meet the requirements stipulated in clause 3, Article 5 of this Circular and must be verified in accordance with the law.

Step 3: Investigate and assess the incident severity

Conduct investigations and assessments to determine the scope, area, etc., of the marine water environment, sediment environment, coastal land, and ecosystem components that are polluted by the oil spill incident. The collected pollution information serves to evaluate the environmental damage caused by the oil spill.

Step 4: Assess Environmental damage

The assessment of environmental damage caused by the oil spill includes:

- The scope, area, depth, and volume of the polluted and degraded regions, using the methods prescribed in Articles 8, 9, and 10 of this Circular.
- The quantity of degraded environmental components, types of ecosystems, and affected species.
- The extent of damage to each environmental component, ecosystem, and species.

Step 5: Verification of the investigation results and damage assessment

After conducting the investigation and damage assessment, the results must be verified to ensure accuracy and objectivity. The verification of environmental damage assessment results caused by the oil spill at sea shall be carried out in accordance with Article 114 of Decree No. 08/2022/ND-CP.

4.4. Subjects Affected by Oil Spill Damage

According to Circular No. 17/2024/TT-BTNMT, the main subjects affected by the oil spill in marine areas include:

Environmental Components: Seawater, marine sediment, and coastal land affected by the oil spill

Ecosystems: Mangrove forests, coral reef ecosystems, seagrass beds

Flora and fauna species in Vietnam: Species listed as special, rare, endangered, or at risk of extinction, including wildlife species listed in the appendices of CITES and forest and marine species classified as endangered under Vietnamese law.
